DOUG SAHM

TEXAS

In The Beginning HIS CLASSIC 60's TEXAS RECORDINGS

The broad scope of Texas music is well known, but not many people embody all it's variety as Doug Sahn does. Born in Texas in 1942 he was a child prodigy on the fiddle and lap steel guitar at the age of five. Known as "Little Doug", he performed country music on stage and on radio with the likes of Faron Young, Webb Pierce, Hank Thompson, Goldie Hill and many others. On the tiny Sarg label of Luling, Texas, he released "A Real American Joe" b/w "Rollin', Rollin'" at the age of twelve.

This particular CD reflects Doug's late '50s and early '60s output on the Texas Labels of Harlem, Cobra & Renner Records. The Alamo City was home to many R&B acts back then as well as the only place in Texas where doo-wop caught on. The Sunglows recorded "Peanuts" there, huge hit in the early '60s, which Doug covers here. "Peanuts" also was a million seller for Herb Alpert & the Tijuana Brass. The Tex-Mex feel of the music is ever present as is evidenced by Doug's rendition of "Scratchy" and "La Cucaracha". After over fifty years in the recording business, he shows no signs of slowing down.
